Democratic Nomination for COMMONWEALTH ATTORNEY

In the Primary Saturday, August 6, 1921

Rotation in office is both democratic and best for the people. Trusting that I shall not be considered presumptuous in tendering my services to fill this high office "so ably filled by my opponent" for the past thirty years, at which rate only three of Kentucky's sons could perform the duties of this position of honor and opportunity in a century.

TWO CHICAGOANS TAKE HARD JOBS

COUNTRY KNOWS DIFFICULTIES THAT CONFRONT A. D. LASKER
AND CHARLES G. DAWES.

CHANCE OF FAILURE IS BIG

Chief of the Budget, Calling Attention to Niggardiness of Congress, Gets Help From the Army and Volunteer Business Men.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington.—When the new chief of the shipping board entered on his duties he appeared grateful because the press of the country had set forth the extreme difficulties of the work which he was to undertake. It does not take a long memory to recall that the shipping board since its organization has had various kinds of troubles to upset it.

A man who takes hold of a government job with the chances of failure, from the very physical aspects of the case, fully equalling the chances of success, is, of course, grateful if the country knows that he must work loyally and hard in order to overcome, and that if he shall fail it will not be altogether from lack of trying.

The country has been pretty well informed concerning the specific duties which confront the new chief of the budget, Charles G. Dawes, formerly a brigadier general in charge in France of purchases and supplies for the American army. Like his fellow Chicagoan, A. D. Lasker, the chairman of the shipping board, Mr. Dawes, has let the country know that he also has a hard job ahead of him.

In his statement to the public concerning his new work, Mr. Dawes took occasion virtually to charge congress with niggardiness in making an appropriation for the new budget office. He gave the amount of the appropriation, outlined the necessities in the case, and then said that so far as preferred implements were concerned for proper conduct of his work, he was about as badly off as a man who was given a "toothpick and told to tunnel Pike's Peak."

Dawes Plain Speaking May Help.

The quoted words occurred in the statement prepared by Mr. Dawes. It was not an extemporaneous delivery in any sense. He had thought over what he was going to say, and he said it. "There is to be a feeling in Washington, that his plain speaking may be of service in the future, when congress intends to put men at work on big tasks and is thinking on the subject of supplying them with the tools of the new trade."

The chief of the budget will get $10,000 a year. All things are comparative. Mr. Dawes left a much better paying position in order to take up his new work. This thing is true of half a dozen other officials in Washington. It was true during the war under the Wilson administration and it continues to be true in peace under the Harding administration.

The day after he made his statement Mr. Dawes went to work on his new job. In order to put it through with the limited paid force at his command, he must be given the aid of all the cabinet officers and of the heads of virtually all the bureaus and all the departments of government. It will be Mr. Dawes' job to prepare estimates for the fiscal year which ends June 30, 1923, and as congress makes the appropriations for these expenditures, at its next session, which begins in December, the work of preparation of the estimates must be done in five months' time.

Mr. Dawes brought to Washington with him W. T. Abbott, vice president of the Central Trust company of Illinois, who will be acting assistant director of the budget for a few months. Then a permanent assistant director will be chosen.

Gets Help From Army.

The new budget chief has gone to the army for help. He had a wide field of work in France as director of purchases and supplies, and he had an opportunity there to study the qualifications of army officers who assisted him in his task. He has asked the government to assign to the budget work as his aids Brig. Gen. George V. Moseley, who was assistant chief of staff at general headquarters in France, and Col. Harry C. Smith, who served under General Harbord in France in the great service of supplies with headquarters at Tours.

In August a number of leading American business men will be asked to come to Washington to serve with

FOR SHERIFF

To the Democratic Voters of Madison County:

In response to the insistence of many friends and my own ambition, I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Madison county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary on August, next.

If you honor me with this office, I promise to give you faithful and efficient service in every possible way, and will do everything in my power to see that the laws are enforced, strictly, without fear or favor.

I will appreciate your vote and support.

ELMER DEATHERAGE

FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce my candidacy for nomination for Sheriff of Madison county at the primary election to be held August 6, 1921. Subject to the action of the Republican party.

I wish to state for the benefit of the Republican voters that at the regular meeting of the county Committee, held April 4, 1921, that I was recommended by said Committee for this nomination.

I have served as Jailor of Madison county for the past four years and feel I have performed the duties of my office to the best of my knowledge and ability. And if I receive this nomination, I will do everything in my power to be elected, and if elected, I wish to state to the people of Madison county that I will endeavor to carry out the duties of this office to the best of my ability, that I have neither pets nor bosses; my main and only duty will be to enforce the law with justice to all and special privileges to none.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE

Being impelled by both my personal ambition and the insistent demand of the people from all parts of the county, I have decided to make the race for County Judge, and I hereby announce myself a candidate for County Judge of Madison County subject to the action of the Democratic primary of August 6th.

My character and my attitude on all public matters are so well known that it is unnecessary to go into those details, except to say that if the people see fit to honor me in this signal manner, I shall bring to the administration of the duties of the office whatever of honesty, fairness, and impartiality there is in me. I will be the judge of no party, class or clique, but of Madison county.

NURSES TRAINING SCHOOL of Berea College Hospital

The College Hospital Training School for nurses has discontinued the shorter course which has been given in former years and from now on will give only the three years course, which fits its graduates for the State examination and the degree of R.N.

This course offers a splendid opportunity to young women who wish to put their lives into a work which is highly remunerative and at the same time gives the privilege of unselfish service for one's fellowmen. The profession of nursing has come to be considered one of the most honored as well as the most profitable callings open to women. Graduate nurses are in great demand both for private duty and to take charge of hospitals all over the country; and any young woman holding her degree of R.N. is practically assured of a position at once.

The young women who have the privilege of taking this course are the most highly favored of all Berea students. They receive all their ordinary expenses, including board, room, laundry, three uniforms a year, and textbooks. There is also abundant opportunity for high class entertainments and outdoor recreation at almost no cost. All the advantages offered by this great institution are open to the student nurses as they are to all the students of other departments.

There are only ten places open for the fall class, which begins when the college opens in September, and those wishing to join would do well to send in their applications at once.

A STORY OF THE BUILDERS OF DEMOCRACY

BY IRVING BACHELLER

COPYRIGHT, IRVING BACHELLER

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Samson and Sarah Taylor, with their two children, Josiah and Helen, travel by wagon from their home in Vergennes, Vt., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the County of the Sargasso in Illinois.

CHAPTER II.—At Niagara Falls they meet a party of adventurers, among them a youth named John McNoll, who also decides to go to the Sargasso country. All of the party suffer from fever and ague. Sarah's ministrations save the life of a youth, Harry Needles, in the last stages of fever, and he accompanies the Taylors. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young "Abe" Lincoln.

CHAPTER III.—Among the Taylors' first acquaintances are Lincoln's friends, Jesse Kriss and his pretty daughter, Tim, 16 years of age.

CHAPTER IV.—Samson decides to locate at New Salem and begins building his house. Led by Jack Armstrong, rowdies attempt to break up the proceedings. Lincoln thunders Armstrong. Young Harry Needles strikes Bap McNoll of the Armstrong crowd, and McNoll threatens vengeance.

In a letter to his father Samson writes:

"Abe was working at my elbow. I saw him drop his hammer and get up and make for the ladder. I knew something was going to happen and I followed him. In a minute everyone was off the roof and out of the building. I guess they knew what was coming. The big lad stood there swinging his arm and yelling like an Indian. It was a big arm and muscled and corded up some, but I guess if I shaved the callus off mine and held it up held a pulled down his sleeve. I didn't know just how good a man Abe was and I was kind of scared for a minute. I never found it so hard work to do nothing as I did then. Honest, my hands kind of acted. I wanted to go an' cuff that feller's ears an' grab hold o' him an' toss him over the ridge pole. Abe went right up to him an' said:

"Jack, you ain't half so bad or half so curly as ye think ye are. You say you can throw down any man here. I reckon I'll have to show ye that you're mistaken. I'll rattle with ye. We're friends an' we won't talk about feller's kind either. Let's have a friendly rattle."

"In a second the two men were locked together. Armstrong had tumbled at Abe with a yell. There was no friendship in the way he took hold. He was going to do all the damage he could in any way he could. Half drunk, Jack is a man who would bite your ear off. It was no rattle; it was a fight. Abe moved like lightning. He acted awful lumber an' well grained. In a second he had got hold of the feller's neck with his big right hand and hooked his left into the cloth on his hip. In that way he held him off and shook him as ye've seen our dog shake a woodchuck. Abe's blood was hot. If the whole crowd had piled on him I guess he would have come out all right, for when he's roused there's something in Abe more than bones and muscles. I suppose it's what I feel when he speaks a piece. It's a kind of lightning. I guess it's what our minister used to call the power of the spirit."

"A friend of the bully jumped in and tried to trip Abe. Harry Needles stood beside me. Before I could move he dashed forward and hit that feller in the middle of his forehead and knocked him flat. Harry had hit Bap McNoll, the cock fighter. I got up next to the kettle then and took the scum off it. Fetched one of them devils a slap with the side of my hand that took the skin off his face and rolled him over and over. When I looked again Armstrong was going limp. His mouth was open and his tongue out. With one hand fastened to his right leg and the other on the nap of his neck Abe lifted him at arm's length and gave him a toss in the air. Armstrong fell about ten feet from where Abe stood and lay there for a minute. The fight was all out of him and he was kind of dazed and sick. Abe stood up like a giant and his face looked awful solemn."

"Hays, if there's any more of you that want trouble you can have some of the same piece," he said.

"They tumbled their heads and not one of them made a move or said a word."

Abe went to Armstrong and helped him up.

"Jack, I'm sorry that I had to hurt you," he said. "You get on to your horse and go home."

"Abe, you're a better man than me," said the bully, as he offered his hand to Abe. "I'll do anything you say."

So the Clary's Grove gang was conquered. They were to make more trouble but not again were they to imperil the foundations of law and order in the little community of New Salem. As they were starting away Bap McNoll turned to Harry Needles and shouted: "I'll get even with you yet—you shish-shish son of a dog."

That is not exactly what he said but it is near enough.

"When He's Roused There's Something in Abe."

CHAPTER V.

In Which the Character of Bim Kelso Flashes Out in a Strange Adventure That Begins the Weaving of a Long Thread of Romance.

The shell of the cabin was finished that day. Its puncheon floor was in place but its upper floor was to be laid when the boards were ready. Its two doors were yet to be made and hung. Its five windows to be fitted and made fast. Its walls to be clinked with clay mortar. Samson and Harry stayed that evening after the rest were gone, smoothing the puncheon floor. They made a few nubs at the forge after supper and went over to Abe's store about nine. Two of the Clary's Grove gang who had tumbled in the village sat in the gloom of its little veranda apparently asleep. Doctor Allen, Jack Kelso, Alexander Ferguson and Martin Waddell were sitting by its fireside while Abe sat on the counter with his legs hanging off.

"I'm sorry we had to have trouble," Samson remarked. "It's the only spot on the day. I'll never forget the kindness of the people of New Salem."

"The raising law is a most significant thing," said Kelso. "Democracy tends to universal friendship—each works for the crowd and the crowd for each, and there are no favorites. Every community is like the thousand friends of Thebes. Most of its units stand together for the common good—for justice, law and honor. The schools are spinning strands of democracy out of all this European wool. Railroaders are to pick them up and weave them into one great fabric. By and by we shall see the ten million friends of America standing together as did the thousand friends of Thebes."

"It's a great thought," said Abe. "No man can estimate the size of that mighty phalanx of friendship all trained in one school." Kelso went on. "Two years ago the Encyclopedia Britannica figured that the population of the United States in 1905 would be 108,000,000 people, and in 1920, 122,000,000. Wealth, power, science, literature, all follow in the train of life and numbers. The empires which moved the sceptre of civilization from the Euphrates to western Europe will carry it from the latter to the new world."

"They say that electricity and the development of the steam engine are going to make all men think alike," said Abe. "If that's so democracy and liberty will spread over the earth. I reckon we are near the greatest years in history. It is a privilege to be alive."

"And young," Doctor Allen added.

"Young! What a God's blessed thing is that!" said Kelso. "Abe, have ye learned 'The Cotton's Saturday Night'?"

"Not yet. It's a heavy hog to hold, but I'll get a grip on an ear and a hind leg and lift it out of the pen before long. You see."

"Don't fail to do that. It will be a help and joy to ye."

"Old Kirkham is a hard master," said Abe. "I hear his bell ringing every time I get a minute's leisure. I'm nigh through with him. Now I want to study rhetoric."

"Only schoolmasters study rhetoric," Kelso declared. "A real poet or a real orator is born with all the rhetoric he needs. Rhetoric is a steel for a fight load under the saddle, but he's too warm blooded for the harness. He was for the day of the plumed knight—not for these times. No man of sense would use a prancing horse on a plow or a stone boat. A good plow horse is a beautiful thing. The play of his muscles, the power of his stride are poetry to me, but when he tries to put on style he is ridiculous. That suggests what rhetoric is apt to do to the untrained intellect. If you've anything to say or write, head straight across the field and keep your eye on the furrow."

In the last diary of Samson Henry Taylor is this entry:

"I went to Gettysburg with the President today and sat near him, when he spoke. Mr. Everett addressed the crowd for an hour or so. As Kelso would say 'He rode the prancing steed of rhetoric.' My old friend went straight across the field. When he finished, the field, plowed and harrowed and fertilized by war, had been sowed for all time. The spring's work was done and well done."

At a quarter of ten the doctor rose and said:

"We're keeping Abe from his sleep and wearing the night away with philosophy. I'm going home."

"I came over to see if you could find a man to help me tomorrow," Samson said to Abe. "Harry is going over to do the clinking alone. I want a man to help me on the whipsaw while I cut some boards for the upper flooring."

"I'll help you myself," Abe proposed. "I reckon I'll close the store tomorrow unless Jack will lend it."

"You can count on me," said Jack. "I'm short of sleep anyhow and a day of rest will do me good."

Abe went with his friends to the door beyond which the two boys from Clary's Grove sat as if sound asleep. It is probable, however, that they had heard what Samson had said to Abe.

Next morning Abe and Samson set out for the woods soon after daylight.

"I like that boy Harry," said Abe. "I reckon he's got good stuff in him. The way he landed on Bap McNoll was a caution. I like to see a feller come right up to the scratch, without an invitation just in the nick of time, as he did. That boy is a likely young colt—strong and limber and well put together and broad between the eyes."

"An' gentle as a kitten," Samson added. "There never was a better face on a boy or a better heart behind it. We like him."

"Yes, sir. He's a well topped young tree—straight and sound and good timber. Looks as if that little girl of Jack's was terribly took up with him. I don't wonder."

"What kind of a girl is she?" Samson asked.

"Awful shy since the arrow hit her. She don't know what it means yet. She'll get used to that, I reckon. She's a good girl and smart as a steel trap."

Harry Needles went whistling up the road toward the new house with stick, hoe and trowel. As he passed the Kelso cabin he whistled the tune of "Sweet Nightingale." It had haunted his mind since he had heard it in the woods. He whistled as loudly as ever he could and looked at the windows. Before he had passed, Bim's face looked out at him with a smile and he waved his hand to her. His heart beat fast as he hurried along.

"I'm not so very young," he said to himself. "I wish I hadn't put on those old clothes. Mrs. Taylor is an awful nice woman but she's determined to make me look like a plow horse. I don't see why she couldn't let me wear decent clothes."

Sarah had enjoyed mothering the boy. His health had returned. His cheeks were rosy, his dark eyes clear and bright, his tall form erect and sturdy.

He had helped Alexander Ferguson with the making of the fireplace and knew how to mix the mortar. He worked with a will, for his heart was in the new home. It was a fine September morning. The far reaches of the great, grassy plain were dimmed with haze. It was a vast, flowery wilderness, waving and murmuring in the breeze like an ocean. How long those acres, sown by the winds of heaven, had waited for the plowman now arrived!

Harry felt the beauty of the scene but saw and enjoyed more the face of Bim Kelso as he worked and planned his own house—no cabin, but a mansion like that of Judge Harper in the village near his old home. He had filled every crevice in the rear wall and was working on the front when he heard the thunder of running horses and saw figures, dim in a cloud of dust, flying up the road again. He thought of the threat of Bap McNoll. It occurred to him that he would be in a bad way alone with those ruffians if they were coming for revenge. He thought of running toward the grove, which was a few rods from the rear door of the house, and hiding there. He couldn't hear to run. Bim and all the rest of them would hear of it. So with the stick in his right hand he stood waiting inside the house and hoping they wouldn't stop. They rode up to the door and dismounted quietly and hobbled their horses. There were five of them who crowded into the cabin with McNoll in the lead.

"Now, you young rooster, you're going to git what's comin' to you," he growled.

The boy faced them bravely and warned them away with his stick. They were prepared for such emergencies. One of them drew a bag of bird shot from his pocket and hurled it at Harry's head. It hit him full in the face and he staggered against the wall stunned by the blow. They rushed upon the boy and disarmed him and bore him to the door. For a little time he knew not what was passing. When he came to, his hands and feet were tied and the men stood near cursing and laughing, while their leader, McNoll, was draining a bottle. Suddenly he heard a voice trembling with excitement and wet with tears saying:

"You go 'way from here or I'll kill you dead. So help me God I'll kill you. If one of you touches him he's going to die."

He saw Bim Kelso at the window with her gun leveled at the head of McNoll. Her face was red with anger. Her eyes glowed. As he looked a tear welled from one of them and trailed down the scarlet surface of her cheek. McNoll turned without a word and walked quickly out of the back door. The others crowded after him. They ran as soon as they had got out of the door. She left the window. In a moment the young men were galloping away.

Bim came into the house sobbing with emotion but with her head erect. She stood her gun in a corner and knelt by the helpless boy. He was crying also. Her hair fell upon his face as she looked at the spot of deep scarlet color made by the shot mark. She kissed it and held her cheek against his and whispered: "Don't cry. It's all over now. I'm going to cut those ropes."

It was as if she had known and loved him always. She was a young mother with her first child. Tenderly she wiped his tears away with her hand, his hair. She cut his hands and he rose and stood before her. Her face changed like magic.

"Oh what a fool I've been!" she exclaimed.

"Why so?" he asked.

"I cried and I kissed you and we never have been introduced to each other."

She covered her eyes with her hair and with bent head went out of the door.

"I'll never forget that kiss as long as I live," said the boy as he followed her. "I'll never forget your help or your crying either."

"Go away from me—I won't speak to you," she said. "Go back to your work. I'll stay here and keep watch." The boy returned to his task pointing up the inside walls but his mind and heart were out in the sunlight talking with Bim. Once he looked out of the door and saw her leaning against the neck of the pony, her face hidden in his mane. When the sun was low she came to the door and said:

"You had better stop now and go home."

She looked down at the ground and added:

"Please, please, don't tell on me."

"Of course not," he answered. "But I hope you won't be afraid of me any more."

She looked up at him with a little smile. "Do you think I'm afraid of you?" she asked as if it were too absurd to be thought of. She unclipped and mounted her pony but did not go.

"I do wish you could raise a mist tache," she said, looking wistfully into his face. "I can't bear to see you look so terribly young; you get worse and worse every time I see you. I want you to be a regular man right quick."

Senator Smith's subcommittee made haste last week to get the Sweet veterans' bureau bill before the senate. This is the measure that is designed to provide proper care and adequate compensation for disabled soldiers and sailors through the coordination of relief agencies. Congress has been severely criticized for delay in passing the bill, which is the fruit of the efforts of the Duwess commission; and a senate investigating committee has been hearing testimony of the scandalous neglect and inhuman treatment of disabled veterans under the present complicated system—or rather lack of system.

The five train service brotherhoods are to take a referendum vote on the acceptance or rejection of the wage reduction order of the federal railway labor board. Rail union leaders believe there will be no strike unless the railway executives insist on the wiping out of the present working rates.

Thrace. So far she has taken no overt steps, and if she does, the "little entente," comprising Anglo-Slavic, Czechoslovakian and Rumanian, will get into action, for the real raison d'etre of that alliance is their determination to keep Bulgaria within the limits now fixed for her. Moreover it is asserted that the "little entente" now has the complete backing of Italy.

One thing the great powers are determined to prevent—the seizure of Constantinople by the Bolsheviks. To this end the entire British Mediterranean fleet is being concentrated in the vicinity of the Turkish capital. It may be that heavy re-enforcements of allied troops also will have to be sent to that region, for the Russian Bolsheviks evidently are planning some big coup. They are calling to the colors all men from eighteen to thirty-five years of age, and general mobilization is expected soon. The demobilization order issued some time ago has been canceled. More interesting than reliable is the story that Trotsky has been imprisoned on orders from Lenin. Similar reports of disagreement between the Bolshevik chiefs have been heard too often.

Germany, still apprehensive that she is to lose out in Upper Silesia, is crying "wolf" again. The country is warned of an impending coup d'etat, and the allies are permitted to overhear the warning. The story, as it comes from Berlin, is that all the reactionary elements are prepared to march on Berlin and upset the government, and that the decision against German possession of Upper Silesia is to be the signal for movement. The German irregular forces were withdrawn from the disputed territory, in accordance with the agreement with the inter-allied commission, but they have not disbanded or disarmed, nor have they moved far from the Silesian border. These troops are commanded by monarchists, and it is reported that General von deroltz, who led the battle expedition and also was mixed up in the Kapp revolution, is now in Upper Silesia. A few days ago the German population of Reuthe, in Upper Silesia, was making a hostile demonstration against the Poles and when the French troops tried to disperse the marchers, the latter fired on them, killing a French major. The troops retired to their arsenal and opened fire with machine guns and a number of Germans were killed. So far the "peaceful" arrangement made by the inter-allied commission has not been a conspicuous success.

The present German government really seems to be increasing in strength, and the confidence reposed in it by the allied governments is growing daily. That is, the confidence that it will carry out the terms of the treaty as far as possible. In a public address last week, Doctor Rathenau, minister of reconstruction, said:

"The United States is the world's chief creditor and Germany is the world's chief debtor, with all other nations sandwiched in between these two as creditor and debtor nations, each tied to or obligated to one or another."

Germany is not a land of gold or raw materials, but a nation which lives, and will continue to live, by the work of her hands. We are, therefore, only able to pay our debts with our products, our manual and mental labor. This we honestly propose to do."

Another thing demanding the attention of the State department is the situation in Tampico where it is feared labor disorders may endanger American property. One or two navy vessels have been sent there, but this was not to be considered a naval demonstration. The trouble in Tampico is a result of the recent decree of the Mexican government increasing the export tax on oil. The industry being checked, thousands of men were thrown out of employment, and their attitude was threatening. President Obregon says the government has no intention of rescinding the decree, and that the labor conditions are not as bad as reported.

The inevitable battle over the tariff was opened by a minority report from the Democratic members of the ways and means committee of the house. The bill as drafted is denounced as a "conspiracy to benefit a few favorites at the expense of all humanity." The report deals especially with the probable effect of the bill on American commerce and with the substitution of the system of American valuation as a basis for levying tariff duties. Calling attention to the fact that the foreign trade of the United States fell from $1,188,255,449 last July to $827,378,825 in May, 1921, the report says:

"Certainly the natural process is preferable to the infected knife of interested surgeons who, by selecting the industries to protect and those to destroy, can reap the harvest their campaign contributions sealed last fall. Verily, the all men are entitled to their reward, and the lumber men and wool men and all the others who cast their bread on the waters of a Republican tide."

U. S. MARSHAL AFTER BOOT-LEGGERS

R. M. Young, United States Marshal, of London, Ky., is in Madison county making arrests of bootleggers, and will take them before United States Commissioner Warfield Bennett of Richmond, Ky. The following have been arrested: Charlie Owens, Link Lakes, and Arthur Jenkins.

UNSIGHTLY AND DANGEROUS SHACKS

Dilapidated buildings of all kinds everywhere are a source of loss to property owners, a menace to civic beauty and a standing invitation to triffers to use them as places for looting purposes and other nefarious uses at night. Fires often start in such places and have resulted in the loss of valuable property exposed and loss of life likewise. Why not tear down all such structures, or repair and make useful and revenue producing these unsightly and dangerous structures.

BEREA POLICE COURT DOINGS MONDAY, JULY 11

Walter Hardin, charged with speeding a motorcycle, was fined $5.00 and cost.

George Grant, charged with hoboing, was fined $5.00 and cost.

Albert Mullins, Linnville Mullins, Oscar Reams, and Jacobs Owens were each fined $5.00 and cost for hoboing. All paid except Owens who is paying his fine in "Flat Top."

A number of other cases are carried over until next Monday.

TO THE VOTERS OF BEREA, KY.

I hereby announce my candidacy for Police Judge for Berea, Ky., subject to the action of the Republican Primary to be held August 6, 1921. I am making this announcement at the solicitation of many of the voters of Berea. Having served as your Chief of Police for a number of years, my record is open for investigation.

If nominated and elected, I promise to carry out the duties of the office with fairness and impartiality.

Your votes and influence will be appreciated.

ATTENTION, EX-SERVICE MEN

General Perishing, who assumed his duties as chief of staff of the army on July 1, has issued an order establishing contact between the War Department and the Bureau of War Risk Insurance for the purpose of keeping former service men informed of their rights under the War Risk Act and aiding them in securing these benefits thru the cooperation of the personnel of the army with the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

According to this, Personnel Adjutants thruout the army, recruiting officers, and regular officers on duty with the National Guard or organized Reserves will be in position to advise ex-service men concerning renewal or conversion of insurance, compensation, medical or dental treatment, hospitalization and vocational training. They also will furnish ex-service men with necessary blank forms, upon application; and assist in seeing that such forms take the proper channels.

MADISON SCHOOLS OPEN JULY 18

W. A. Johnson, truant officer for Madison county, has announced that the county schools will open on Monday, July 18. He desires also to have stated that the Court of Appeals has decided that all children between the ages of 7 and 16 shall attend school every day.

We regret to say that in the past some parents have given considerable trouble in this county by refusing to send their children to school and in a few cases it was necessary to impose fines. Why a father is unwilling to allow his child the advantages of at least a free school education is something which we do not understand, but it is this condition that makes the above mentioned law necessary, and there is every assurance that this law will be enforced.

THREE MEN RECEIVE DOUBLE AWARD FOR TOTAL DISABILITY

Among the 341,347 active compensation and insurance claims on file in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance there are three cases in which a compensation award for double total disability is being paid, the only three coming under that provision of the War Risk Act. Each case gives evidence of the degree of ingenuity and courage which survive in these former service men both blinded and maimed.

Henry A. Bitter (C-165 389) Corporal, Company C, 352nd Infantry, 88 Division. Bitter was injured in Toul Sector, France, on the 16th of November, 1918, by accidental explosion of hand grenade. His company was assigned to gas training at a French training camp. On the last day at gas school, maneuvers were ordered. While advancing thru a smoke screen under orders, with a hand grenade to be thrown at an imaginary enemy, the pin in the hand grenade became loosened and the hand grenade exploded, causing injury that resulted in the amputation of both hands and loss of sight of both eyes. He was awarded $200 a month, and on his $10,000 insurance the monthly payments of $57.50.

An attendant was furnished him and he was fitted with artificial hands. Before entering the service he had been a registered pharmacist. He was given vocational training and recently has notified the Federal Board that he had, with his brother acting as associate and personal attendant, completed the formula for a proprietary medicine.

Pearl Perry (C-258 110) Private, Field Artillery. The premature explosion of a hand grenade at Verdun, October 3, 1918, entirely destroyed both hands, right eye destroyed, and hearing impaired, and he was under hospital treatment from date of injury until August 2, 1919, when he was discharged. Besides his double permanent-total award of $200, compensation from the date of discharge, there was also made to him insurance award of $57.50 a month retroactive to the date of his injury. He was a truck driver before joining the Army and a recent report from a hospital where he had received treatment for a minor accident contains the information, "he wears artificial arms and drives his auto."

Charles Joseph Bronner, (C-358 766) Seaman 1st class, U. S. N. Bronner received his injuries in Italy, August 19, 1919, while on a recreation party with some sixty other sailors from his ship, the U. S. S. J. Fred Talbot. While going thru the trenches near the battlefield Monfalcone, Istria, looking for souvenirs a hand grenade or some similar explosive was discharged and blew out both hands and blew out both eyes. These injuries were judged as received "not in line of duty, but not the result of his own misconduct," and he was awarded $220 compensation and attendant allowance, and on the $2,000 insurance which he had applied for and had been granted, he is receiving a monthly payment of $11.50. Immediately upon discharge from the Navy, Bronner applied for Vocational Training and was given a course at the Red Cross Institute for the Blind, at Baltimore, Maryland, the Federal Board paying him $80 a month and the Bureau of War Risk Insurance continuing to pay $140 during the course. Bronner has successfully adjusted himself to his apparent unsurmountable handicap by the use of artificial arms terminating in complicated attachments with which he can carry heavy articles, serve himself, and hold a cane for his guidance about the school.

We have sold many homes but have many more for sale. Some large bluegrass farms, well located, on Dixie Highway; some small places around Berea especially adapted to dairy and poultry business; some highly improved property in Berea; some vacant lots that are worth the money; some country stores with established business; some farms that would be exchanged for town property.

In addition to these we have thirty acres on Dixie Highway, south of Berea, adjoining the town, which we will cut up into lots and baby farms to suit purchasers and sell on easy terms. Arrangements are being made to put city water and electric lights out to these lots. Building material has come down until one can afford to build and have a home to suit him.

Come and see us, whatever your wants may be. If you want to sell your property, list it with us, and we will do our best to sell it for you. Remember we Sell the Earth. No proposition is too large for us to tackle. None too small to receive our attention.

Peace With Germany

A resolution of Congress declaring peace with Germany was signed by President Harding late July 2, 1921, nearly three years after the signing of the armistice. The house vote on the resolution was 263 to 59 and the Senate vote 38 to 19.

The United States could not see its way clear to join in the Treaty of Versailles signed by the Allied nations. By this time it is easy to see that to have done so would have been a serious mistake.

The fact that we did not enter into any terms of peace with Germany earlier has this decided advantage that it kept us from hasty and passionate action in the matter. We had time to draw a second breath. In doing so we find that the Germany with which we made peace is not the Germany against which we declared war.

That Germany was a mighty militaristic empire. The present Germany has a standing army of 100,000 men and practically no navy. This is less armament in proportion to their population than that of France, England, or the United States.

The present Germany has reduced her army and navy appropriations $600,000,000 a year, and is turning that amount into productive industry. While this was not originally her own choice, she has now made it her own choice.

On the other hand her smaller neighbor, France, is maintaining an army of 800,000 men, but, as we are told, with no militaristic aspiration. And in England and in the United States the good people are reluctant to reduce the army and the navy.

The present Germany has returned to the peaceful pursuits of industry. Last year her ninety automobile factories exported 20,000 automobiles. Her dye industries are turning out 5,000 tons of dyestuffs a year.

A delegation of English business men toured Germany recently. They did not find an idle acre of ground nor a man out of work in the nation. The working men are clamoring for longer work-hours. The output of the railroad shops is far less than the demand.

In England, so this same commission reported, there is discontent, idleness, and listlessness. In the United States the army of the unemployed is large and steadily increasing, so that conditions are really alarming. Charles M. Schwab is reported to have said that we "with everything on our hands are allowing Germany to win the peace thru the efforts of her labor."

In our own country there are seventeen percent illiterates, mostly native born whites, while in Germany there are less than one-third of one percent illiterates—that is, for every illiterate German we have more than fifty.

The first thing we know Germany will again lead the world as she did for decades in the past.

If we want to be among the leaders of the world, we must lead in the pursuits of peace, in education, in disarmament. Merely to lead in war is no worthy distinction.

One immediate result of the establishment of peace with Germany will be the resumption of diplomatic relations and the consequent reopening of trade, which will prove advantageous to the United States as well as Germany. Another result will be the withdrawal of the American forces in Germany at the earliest possible date, probably within a month. This army of occupation has so far cost about $275,000,000. Of this amount Germany paid about $3,000,000. The balance came out of our treasury. Will the taxpayers object to the stopping of this national leakage?

SEVENTY SECONDS OF SUNSHINE

It's Dead Certain—

—That if we had to work as hard as the sun does in its warming of the earth, we'd get discouraged in a hurry. Old Sol has to push his sunshine, remember, through ninety million miles of space.

How the devil must squirm when he sees a man retain his grimaces, grit and grin, even tho' all the evil circumstances of life seem leagued against him!

Ask Him—He Knows
"Well now,
Does it pay?"

Is there any single query oftener put than simply that?
Tells us when to buy a farm, sell some soap, or lease a flat,
Take insurance, lose our tonsils—yes, or even keep a cat!

What of conscience, then, which firmly bids us "yes," or simply "nay"? Does it pay to keep it stalwart, heed its every little say?

Ask the man of great achievement (sixty years if he's a day).
Hearken now the man who conquered answers to our "Does It Pay?"

"Well, now,
I'll say it pays!"

Just for the Week
A hearty manner wins many a friend. Do you realize what the word "heart" means? It is a good old English word. Put "heart" today into your words, smiles and handshakes.

To best our enemy, praise him.—
Patton Paris.

Abraham Lincoln:—"Capital has its rights, which are as worthy of protection as any other rights. Nor is it denied that there is and probably will be a relation between labor and capital producing mutual benefits. The strongest bond of human sympathy outside of the family relation should be the one uniting all working people of all nations, and tongues and kindreds. Nor should this lead to a war upon property or the owners of property. Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich, shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

A Parable of the Good Housewife

A certain man went down from home to business and fell among thieves. And they stripped him and robbed him and departed, each to his own home, leaving him apparently—so far as the market was concerned—a dead one. He, too, went home. And there he found a wife, the sort of wife that only a good God can give a man. The housewife bound up his wounds with her sympathy, and she poured into them the oil of understanding. And she set him once more on the highway of inspiration and high purpose. And on the morrow the man again went down to business, determined and indeed empowered to conquer. It was quite another day!

Realization

Faith is "What is hoped for."
The best-known Book declares—
Not, "Hoping for what's hoped for,"
Or, "Perhaps He'll hear our prayers."

Faith is getting what you've faith for.
It's just having what you crave—
There's immediate achievement
For the soul that's firm and brave.

THE PRIVY GOES TO THE WELL

It is human and natural to wish to live as long as possible, and to live as nearly free from pain as possible. It is natural and proper that people should care for their children, and wish their children to be healthy and useful. It is also characteristic of decent people to abhor filth. But the lives and health of many people and their children in Berea are in serious danger because some of them are ignorant of certain conditions; some are too lazy or too stingy to remedy certain conditions, and some thru lack of decency are indifferent to these conditions.

This article is written to set forth these conditions, and to call the attention of the people to the urgent necessity of correcting them.

At the expense of the State Government, water from 46 wells in Berea has been examined; 20 of these wells, or 43.4% were found to contain colon bacilli. Colon bacilli comes only from the intestines of human beings, and from the intestines of certain animals. The presence of colon bacilli in a well means the presence of manure (usually human) in that well. Of all people who have typhoid fever, about four in every hundred who recover, carry typhoid germs thruout the remainder of their lives, and pass millions of them with every bowel movement. Therefore it follows that any well that contains colon bacilli is likely to be, or to become contaminated with typhoid germs at any time.

There have been several cases of typhoid fever in Berea in the last few months, and each case has been traced to one of these polluted wells.

How does this contamination, this manure, these colon bacilli, these typhoid germs get into the wells? In practically all cases it is carried over the surface of the ground for a short distance from open privies, finds its way to the underlying slate and thru seams and fissures in the slate into the wells.

What is the remedy, what will keep the wells clean? Construct septic tanks, or sanitary toilets as recommended in an ordinance of the City Council, and the danger will be minimized. In the meantime boil all water from these polluted wells before using it for any purpose. And, above all things, drink no unboiled water, and rinse milk vessels only in boiling water or in water that has been boiled. Buy no milk from any person whose well is contaminated with colon bacilli unless you know that these precautions have been taken for your protection.

Movements for sanitation always meet with opposition from those who do not believe in germs, from those who do not value health for themselves and for their children, from those who value money more than health and from those without decency.

But this is Berea, and a large majority of Berea's people are clean, wholesome, honorable and decent; people of that kind cannot tolerate filth, manure and colon bacilli in their food and drink.

—Alson Baker

HEALTH DEPARTMENT AWAKE IN KENTUCKY

There is a distinctly increasing interest in public health work thruout Kentucky. Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer, declared in Louisville on July 9th upon his return from a tour of inspection of eight county health departments. "I found," he said, "the county health board in every county I visited alive and on the job—and I was in Bath, Clark, Madison, Scott, Harrison, Laurel, Bell and Knox counties. Generally I encountered a popular interest in public health such as I never ran into before."

"We are getting reports," he said, when asked about health conditions in the counties visited, "of very unusual prevalence of dysentery and summer complaint in children all over Eastern Kentucky. This seems to be due largely to the unusual drought, which has concentrated the infection in the reduced water supplies."

"In the cities and towns where the water supply is properly filtered and chlorinated and where the milk is pure or effectively pasteurized there has been no increase in diarrhea, but there is a serious danger of an epidemic of this class of disease in many sections of the State. To guard against this the State Board of Health is urging everyone in Kentucky to have himself vaccinated against typhoid."

Picture Puzzle Fun Game

How Many Objects in This Picture Start with the Letter "C"

The Picture above contains a number of objects beginning with the letter "C." Just take a good look at the picture. There are all kinds of things that begin with the letter "C"—like cow, calf, cane, etc. Nothing is hidden; you don't have to turn the picture upside down. Make a list of all the objects in the picture, the names of which begin with the letter "C." See who can find the most. Don't miss any. Fifteen Prizes will be awarded for the fifteen best lists of words submitted. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of words will be awarded First Prize; second best, Second Prize, etc.

Everybody Join In

The "Cincinnati Post" announces a most interesting and amusing puzzle—a puzzle that is different and in which all can participate—from the tiniest child to grandfather and great grandma. It really isn't a puzzle at all, for all the objects have been made perfectly plain with no attempt to disguise or hide them. None are so small but what the poorest eyesight can see them; it is a test of skill. Your ability to find "C-words" determines the prize you win. Right after the dashes are done this evening, gather all the members of your family together; give each one of them a pencil and sheet of paper, and see who can find the most "C-words." We know you will enjoy it, for everyone loves a puzzle.

Open To All—Costs Nothing to Try

The "Post" invites you, Mr. and Mrs. Reader and Family, to join in this puzzle game. We know you will find it to be the best game ever full of fun and excitement; educational and interesting to all. Now that is saying a lot, but wait until you have tried it. We venture to say: "You will never have as much fun." It doesn't look hard, it isn't hard. Write down those C-words you have in mind right now. Study the picture carefully. It is an interesting picture, just bubbling over with fun for puzzle lovers.

This is a puzzle game just for our readers outside the city of Cincinnati. No one living in Cincinnati is allowed to compete.

Observe These Rules

1. Any man, woman or child residing outside the city of Cincinnati who is not an employee of the "Cincinnati Post," or a member of an employee's family may submit an answer. It costs nothing to try.
2. All answers must be mailed by July 23, 1921, and sent to: Puzzle Manager, "Cincinnati Post."
3. All lists of names should be written on one side of the paper only, and numbered consecutively, 1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address on the upper right hand corner. Do not write subscribers' names or anything else on same paper with list of words.
4. Only words found in the English dictionary will be counted. Do not use obsolete words.
5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects. An object can be named only once; however, any part of the object may also be named.
6. Do not use hyphenated or compound words; nor words formed by the combination of two or more complete English words.
7. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of names of visible objects shown in the picture that begin with the letter "C" will be awarded first prize, etc. Neatness, style, or handwriting have no bearing upon deciding the winners.
8. Candidates may cooperate in answering the puzzle, but only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside of the family where two or more have been working together.
9. In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be paid to each tied participant.
10. All answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription by mail for the "Cincinnati Post" is sent in.
11. Three Cincinnati business men having no connection with the "Cincinnati Post" will be selected to act as judges and decide the winners. They will use Webster's New International Dictionary as their reference and participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.
12. The judges will meet on August 3 and announcement of the Prize Winners and corrected list of words will be published in the "Cincinnati Post" just as quickly thereafter as possible.

You Can Win $1000

This C-Word Picture Puzzle Game is a Campaign to increase the popularity of the "Cincinnati Post" outside the city of Cincinnati. It costs nothing to take part. It is not a subscription contest, and you do not have to send in a single subscription to win a prize.

If your list of "C-words" is awarded first prize by the judges, you will win $35.00, but if you would like to win more than $35, we are making the following special offer during this big Publicity and Booster Campaign, whereby you can win bigger Cash Prizes by sending in ONE or TWO yearly subscriptions BY MAIL ONLY, (maximum two subscriptions) to the "Cincinnati Post" at $5.00 a year.

HERE'S HOW: If your answer to the "C-Word" Picture Puzzle is awarded first prize by the three independent judges, and you have sent in ONE yearly subscription to the "Cincinnati Post" by mail at $5.00 (new or renewal), you will receive $350 instead of $35.

Or, if your answer is awarded first prize by the judges, and you have sent in TWO yearly subscriptions to the "Cincinnati Post," $10.00 in all, you will receive $1,000 in place of $35.

How is this for a liberal offer? But look! We will give extra amounts on all prizes in the same manner. If your answer is qualified by TWO subscriptions and you win second prize, you will receive $750, and so on down. (See 3rd column in prize list above.) It takes but TWO subscriptions (new or renewal) to qualify for the BIG $1,000 REWARD. ABSOLUTELY! Two subscriptions is the maximum. Your own subscription will count, or subscription to start at some future date. Just write on the order when you want the paper started and it will start promptly on that date.

Anyone residing outside the city of Cincinnati may submit an answer, but only R. F. D. mail delivery subscriptions, or subscriptions to be delivered by mail in towns where The Post has no carrier, will count in the contest.

Advertising?

Did you know that intelligent and judicious advertising doesn't cost the man who pays the bill a cent? Well, then, who DOES pay for the advertising if the merchant himself does not?

The unwise patrons of the store that is not advertised are the persons who pay for advertising.

By advertising, a merchant increases his turnovers and sells four or five times as much merchandise as he would if he did not advertise. The real cost of selling that merchandise is reduced with each turn-over. Thus, the amount he invested in advertising comes back to him and he is enabled to do business on a closer margin of profit on each turn-over than the merchant who doesn't use advertising to increase the volume of his business.

So, after all, the merchant who advertises doesn't pay for his advertisements, neither do his customers. It's the patrons of the UNADVERTISED store who pay for them.

BIG CLUB CAMP

Everything is ready for one of the biggest Club Camps in the State at BERE. All club members from Madison and Rockcastle Counties will attend. The BEST location, the BEST water, the BEST speakers, the BEST eating, the BEST sleeping, the BEST games and plays—in fact, the BEST of everything will be at the Berea Junior Agricultural Club Camp for club members and club leaders.

The Camp opens Monday, July 18, and closes Friday morning, July 22. All club members and leaders are urged to attend this camp.

This camp will mean more to our young people than the same number of days in school. The camp is a UNIVERSITY, the best of instructions will be given.

Leaders—Adults

Parents should not hesitate to let their boys and girls attend this camp. It is strictly Christian. No smoking, no chewing, no swearing, no ugly stories will be allowed on the ground. There will be an adult person for every ten or twelve club members. The camp will be guarded at night.

Visiting Day

Wednesday, July 20, will be VISITING DAY in the camp. Parents of club members and friends are asked to visit camp on this date and spend the entire day observing what has been done and being done by our clubs.

Visitors will be welcomed each evening from 7 to 9 p. m. During these two hours there will be a short sermon by a minister, for 30 minutes after which the Campfire activities for one and one-half hours.

POULTRY CULLING CAMPAIGN

Perhaps You Don't Know That One Third of Your Hens Are Loafers. Don't Let Them Fool You Any Longer.

A free demonstration on how to tell the loafers will be held by County Agent, Spence and A. S. Chapin, Specialist, State College of Agriculture, on the following dates:

Monday, July 25, at 2:00 p. m.—J. H. Gentry's farm near Speedwell.
Tuesday, July 26, at 8:00 a. m.—A. B. Strong's farm near Scaffold Cane Rural Demonstration School—Dixie Highway.
Tuesday, July 26, at 10:00 a. m.—W. C. Viers' farm near Rockford, on the Dixie Highway—(Scaffold Cane Ridge).

Tuesday, July 26, at 2:30 p. m.—W. C. Johnson's farm near Orlando, on the Cove Branch Road.

Everybody interested in POULTRY of any breed is invited to attend and learn how to cull out the LOAFERS or non-producing hens.

These four culling demonstrations will be all that can be held at this time. This is an opportunity for poultry raisers which only comes once in a while. Bring your questions and let's discuss them together with Mr. Chapin our Poultry Specialist.

BLACK LEG

Blackleg is a fatal disease to young cattle. It is common to calves and cattle under two years of age. It was once regarded as a form of anthrax, but investigations have proven that it is a specific disease, produced by a germ quite different from that of anthrax. The disease is spread over quite a large part of the west, and some parts of the east and south.

Prevention

As a prevention, all susceptible animals should be vaccinated with blackleg vaccine, which is a safe and reliable prevention. In sections where the trouble prevails, the young cattle should be vaccinated a month or so before it is time for the trouble to occur and as it occurs at slightly different times in different localities, the time for vaccinating will vary some, some time during early spring or early summer.

An Outbreak of Blackleg

There has been two cases of Blackleg on Mrs. G. S. Livesey's farm near Level Green, Rockcastle County. The County Agent, last Saturday, vaccinated cattle for G. S. Livesey, J. H. Bullock and E. L. Bray.

FERTILE EGGS COST THE FARMERS $15,000,000 A YEAR

Farmers lose $45,000,000 annually from bad methods of producing and handling eggs. One-third of this loss is preventable, because it is due to the partial hatching of fertile eggs which have been allowed to become warm enough to begin to incubate.

The rooster makes the egg fertile. The fertile egg makes the blood ring.

You can save the $15,000,000 now lost from blood rings by keeping the male bird from your flock after the hatching season is over.

The rooster does not help the hen to lay. He merely fertilizes the germ of the egg. The fertile germ in hot weather quickly becomes a blood ring, which spoils the egg for food and market. Summer heat has the same effect on fertile eggs as the hen or incubator.

Infertile Eggs Will Not Become Blood Rings. After the hatching season, cook sell, or pen your rooster. Your hens not running with a male bird will produce infertile eggs—quality eggs that keep best and market best.

Rules For Handling Eggs on the Farm

Heat is the great enemy of eggs, both fertile and infertile. Farmers are urged to follow these simple rules, which cost nothing but time and thought and will add dollars to the poultry yard returns:

1. Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.
2. Gather the eggs twice daily.
3. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar.
4. Market the eggs at least twice a week.
5. Sell, kill, or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.

Notice

Valuable published information on the raising and care of poultry and eggs and individual advice on these subjects may be obtained by writing to the Animal Husbandry Division, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., or your County Agent.

COLLEGE EDUCATION FOR BOY

Kentucky Lad Saves Enough From Sale of Litter of Fine Pigs to Pay for Schooling.

Here is the story of how a litter of pigs produced an agricultural college education, a system of farm water-works and general improvement on a backwoods farm that had only primitive advantages.

The education went to Jeff Anderson, a Kentucky boy of Pulaski county.

Pigs Almost Ready to Root for Them-selves.

Jeff belonged to a boys' club which had been organized by the county agent. He was encouraged to raise a litter of fine pigs under the club system by which the boys applied approved methods and kept account of the results. The pigs sold for a fancy price. Jeff, who had made sure progress, saved some money from his labor and in 1918 entered the Kentucky State College of Agriculture for its short course.

He had been used to seeing his mother and other women carry water 150 yards up a hill for washing and cooking. At the agricultural college he realized the convenience and benefit to be gained by running water conduct-ter, and cheese, and this coupled with the good demand for these products has produced higher market values.

The movement of spring chickens, as is natural at this time of the year, is increasing.

Careful handling in the production and marketing of poultry, eggs, and butter by the producer, especially during the heated season, contributes to improved products, better values, and better satisfaction to the ultimate consumer.

ed to a tap in the kitchen. When he returned home he persuaded his father to let him put in a water system. A stand pipe 90 feet high was built with a 500-gallon tank on top, which gave sufficient pressure to force water to the dwelling 100 feet away. He rigged up a gasoline engine and pump at the spring under the hill. He had learned a little about plumbing, so he did all the pipe fitting in the house. One month's work at odd times, coupled with a little of the knowledge he had gained at the State College of Agriculture put the water right into the kitchen. Jeff has gone back to complete his college education; and they're still raising better pigs at the Anderson farm.

New Legion Head Sees President. John H. Emery, wounded veteran of the great war, who has been chosen by the executive committee of the American Legion as the organization's commander to fill out the unexpired term of Col. F. W. Gilbreath, who met his death accidentally recently has been in Washington, with Col. Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, he called upon President

Harding and upon the officials of the war department.

Commander Emery, as are all Legionnaires, is much interested in the work soon to be undertaken of recruiting the reserves of the army, and in forwarding a part of his long goal will between the civilians who fought in the last war and the officers and men of the regular army.

Mr. Emery was wounded in the left arm in France, so badly wounded that he has comparatively little use of the injured member today. He regrets apparently that this physical disability prevents him from accepting a commission in the reserves of the United States army.

I had a talk with Commander Emery. He spoke as one Legionnaire to another. He emphasized the lesson which I think it is the desire of the American Legion officials to see fulfilled in spirit and in truth in the ranks of the former soldiers.

Would Be Soldier Citizens. The word, "We were known as citizen soldiers," I hope that we will know now as soldier citizens. This breathes the spirit of the service which seems to be in the hearts of the Legionnaires today.

American Legion officials are interested deeply in the recent legislation which cuts the American army to a force of 150,000 men. Of course the Legion men think that an army of this size is sufficient for the needs of the republic even in peace times. They feel also that the cut reduces the number of the Legionnaires who will be the soldiers of the law makers.

But if war comes and there is not an adequate first line of defense force in the regular army, the men "who did it before" will instantly be willing to do it again.

Of course as the ex-soldiers seek to view it, the men of the Legion and of other veteran organizations patriotically will offer their services to do it again, but nevertheless there is a feeling that the million young men who come to military age every year in this republic, and the vast crowd of soldiers in the last war, might be compelled if inhumanly war should come, to take on a part of the first burden which the belief is, will be certain to fall under coming conditions to the lot of the former fighters to assume.

When it was proposed under the last administration to maintain a regular army of 280,000, the proportion of 17,000 commissioned officers was fixed as being proper. The army has been reduced to 150,000 men, 13,000 less than the number originally contemplated. Now it is said that congress possibly may legislate a large number of regular army officers out of their commissions.

Fight Against Fewer Commissions. It can be said from first knowledge that the War department, and this of course means the administration will resist any attempt to deprive some thousands of young Americans of their commissions in the regular army. There are today 13,000 such commissioned officers, for the force never was brought up to the strength contemplated when the proposal for an army of 280,000 men was made. Admittedly, however, an army of 150,000 could be overmanned if 13,000 officers were assigned to active duty with the troops.

The contention of the War department is, however, that even with the reduced number of men in the ranks there will not be too many commissioned officers if the present number, 13,000, is kept at work. It is said there is plenty to be done by that part of the commissioned personnel which is not serving actively with the troops.

A large number of officers, the authorities say, must be assigned to duty in connection with the reserves, the National Guard, the army schools and to staff work. The authorities hold that there would be a crippling of the service if congress should take the action of reduction which it has been suggested it may attempt.

The War department is not slow to point out the justice side of the matter. The department is borne out by the records when it says that there was an appeal made by the government of the United States to young men to enter the regular army as officers and to make the service their life work. As a result hundreds upon hundreds of them gave over good paying positions in civil life and entered the army in response to the call.

Lincoln Statue Put Back. Sentiment in Washington has compelled the return to its former site of the statue of Abraham Lincoln which stood in front of the district court building facing John Marshall place. There was objection to the statue because it was said to be inhumane. Perhaps it was, but it was the first statue of Lincoln which was put up in the capital city, and for years was the only one. Sentiment hovered about it and now it is to be put back in the place from which adverse criticism caused its removal.

A good many men of unquestioned judgment thought that the Lincoln statue was a bit of art. It stood upon a tall, almost spindling pillar rising to a height of 25 feet. The tall figure of Lincoln surmounted it and as someone expressed it, it seemed to be simply a straight line from the base of the pillar to the head of its surmounting figure. However, the statue looks like Lincoln and the pose of the figure is true to life, and therefore perhaps ought to be upholding even to art critics.

Associations May Be Sued. Massachusetts has a new law which permits all voluntary associations to be sued, including labor unions.

Land Sale

If you are interested in buying a good country home now is your opportunity.

I, John A. Wylie, having been appointed as administrator of my deceased father's estate will offer for sale a well known Garrard county farm, owned by and known as the S. W. Wylie farm for the past fifty years.

This farm consists of about 80 acres and is located five miles west of Berea and one mile from Wallaceton on road leading toward White Lick.

The above farm lies in two tracts of about 40 acres each, being divided by county road. This land is fertile soil and can all be cultivated. Does not contain any waste land and but little wood land.

The improvements consist of a five-room house, two barns and other necessary outbuildings. Also a large well matured orchard producing both apples and peaches.

You will find this a most convenient place to live, being located on rural route and only one mile from good schools, churches and store, and in a neighborhood of good and friendly people.

This farm is now ready to be offered for sale and possession will be given to purchaser January 1, 1922.

If you are interested in buying a farm of this size and type you will make a mistake if you fail to come and look it over.

For price, terms and any other information you would like to have regarding the above property, write or see

LESSON FOR JULY 24

SAUL PROCLAIMS JESUS AS THE CHRIST

LEPSON TEXT—Acts 9:1-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Matt. 16:16.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Acts 18:28.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Turning Others About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Winning Others to Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Getting Ready for a New Career.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Saul Begins His Ministry.

I. Saul Preaching Christ in Damascus (vv. 1-22).

After Saul was baptized he remained certain days with the believers in Damascus. How beautiful to think of the transformation which took place in a man who was so passionately bent on the destruction of the disciples was now enjoying fellowship with them.

1. Straightway preaching in the synagogue (v. 20). Saul, like every one who is really converted, begins to tell of the newly found Savior. Every Christian should be taught that it is his business as soon as saved to help to save others.

2. The people amazed (v. 21). They knew that the very one who had been ring-leader in persecuting the Christians in Jerusalem and had come to Damascus for the express purpose of bringing them bound to the chief priests, was now passionately advocating that which he had so vehemently sought to destroy.

3. The Jews confounded (v. 22). Saul retired into Arabia for three years. During this time he was taught the full truth of his mission (Gal. 1:17, 18). Saul increased in spiritual strength and contended the Jews, proving that Jesus was not only the Son of God but their Messiah. His proof, no doubt, was by citation from the old Testament prophecies showing that the life, death and resurrection of Jesus exactly paralleled them. That Christ died and rose again from the dead, no one then could deny, the transformation of Saul from a persecutor to an ardent witness was a proof which could not be gainsaid.

II. Saul Escapes From the Jews (vv. 23-24).

He used the Scriptures with such skill that the Jews could not answer him. Finding that the argument was against them, the Jews now counsel how they might destroy Saul. So intent were they upon killing him that they watched the gates of the city day and night that they might take him. When this was known to the disciples they let him down at night in a basket by the wall.

III. Saul Visits Jerusalem (vv. 25-26).

This journey to Jerusalem was in strange contrast with the one from Jerusalem to Damascus. The one was the leader of an important expedition under the authority of the Jewish officers with the prospect of a place of distinction in the councils of the Jewish nation. Now he is an outcast, disowned by his countrymen, and fleeing for his life.

1. Suspected by the disciples (v. 26). The believers at Jerusalem had not heard fully about Saul's conversion. They knew nothing of his journey to Arabia and his preaching at Damascus after his return, so they regarded him as a spy. "What of the penalty of wrongdoing is the difficulty of restoration in the good opinion of honorable men?" But it is infinitely better to be regarded with suspicion when genuinely true than to be trusted as genuine when a hypocrite.

2. Barnabas' confidence in Saul (v. 27). He was a man filled with the Holy Spirit (Acts 11:24); therefore able to discern the reality of Saul's conversion. He was in reality a "son of consolation," and in this instance showed his kindly spirit.

3. Saul in fellowship with the disciples (v. 28). They went in and out together. Peter received him into his home, since his object in going to Jerusalem was to see Peter (Gal. 1:18). He abode with him 15 days.

4. Saul disputing with the Grecians (v. 29). He was not content to merely visit with the brethren, he spoke boldly in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ.

IV. Saul Sent to Tarsus (vv. 30-31).

A conspiracy similar to the one at Damascus was formed against Saul. When the brethren knew of it they sent him to Tarsus. Saul's life is in danger everywhere except among the Gentiles. He is now back to the place of his birth. The first and best place for one's testimony is in his home.

When in Tribulation.

When thou art in tribulation, and all these things are come upon thee, even in the latter days, if thou turn to the Lord thy God, and shalt be obedient unto His voice for the Lord thy God is a merciful God; he will not forsake thee.—Deuteronomy 4:30, 31.

A Sabbath Thought

It came, let us worship and how down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker. For He is our God; and we are the people of His pasture.—Psalm 150:7.

Threelinks

Threelinks, July 10.—Some of the hottest days the writer has ever experienced are now marking the time at Threelinks. Mrs. Cora Gabbard, who has been sick for some time, is no better and is not expected to live long.—This community was shocked last Saturday when the sad news of the tragic and brutal murder of Willie Powell at Livingston Saturday reached here. It seems that a few Bill Lockets still live and are ready to take at any time that which they can not give. And we feel that our own Rockcastle would do justice to her fair name to handle this man as Fayette did Locket, the negro.—Crops look bad in this section and no rain for ten weeks.—Several from this place plan on attending the institute at Mt. Vernon next week.—Grant Abrams of Big Hill section passed thru this place Thursday.—J. E. Hampton of this place has been in Richmond buying goods for a few days.—John Witt and wife were visiting at this place the last of the week.—Willie Jones of Big Hill section was in Threelinks on business Thursday.—Mrs. Feha Barnett and son of Oklahoma and Mrs. Margaret Jones and son of Richmond, Ky., spent part of this week visiting friends and relatives in Rockcastle and Jackson counties.—Later, Mrs. Cora Gabbard who has been sick for some time with consumption died Saturday morning and was laid to rest in the Pleasant Hill cemetery. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and two small children. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Goochland

Goochland, July 11.—We are having some good rains at present.—The Death Angel visited Grover Gabbard of this place and took his companion from him, but we hope his loss will be her eternal gain.—The Mr. Powell, who was shot on the 2nd of July at Livingston, Ky., died at the hospital at London, Ky., on the 4th of July and was brought back to his home and interred in the Dry-fork graveyard on Horse Lick, in Jackson county. We understand that the party doing the shooting was given an examining trial on the 9th of July and held without bail.—Mrs. Nathan Jones is very sick at present.—S. R. McCrachen visited the writer on last Sunday and reported having a good rain, on the day before, which has helped crops of all kinds.—The Goochland store is headquarters for everything in school supplies.—Everybody take the good old Citizen.

The father and mother have our sympathy over the loss of their dear one.—Misses Della, Jessie and Grova Bowman, of Cincinnati, O., sent a message for their father to meet them at the depot Monday, July 4th. They will take recreation for a while, as they all hold positions in Ohio.—We are having some very hot days at present which is very favorable on those who have grass to save.

Island City

Island City, July 11.—W. O. Chadwell called on Robert J. Bowman Thursday. Mr. Chadwell is contemplating on teaching this year at Big Springs in Owsley county.—The people are very busy at present in their grass and oats.—The candidates call around very frequently. Hon. John C. Eversole spoke at the Graded School house Tuesday night in the interest of his reelection to the office of Circuit Judge.—Misses Della, Jessie and Grova Bowman entertained quite a number of young folks at their home Saturday night. The girls will return to Cincinnati, O., soon to resume their work, as they have employment there.—The good gentle showers are making the corn grow and aiding vegetation generally.—Arthur McWhorter called on the Rev. A. D. Bowman Saturday to have some papers fixed up in the way of his claim for compensation.—The holy rollers are conducting a series of meetings at Ethel at present. The report is that Charley Peters and wife will receive baptism Sunday.—The pastor failed to fill his regular appointment at the Southern Methodist church, Sunday.—We are in hopes of a railroad, as they are driving stakes, coming up the river, near Booneville, en route to Manchester. Homer Morris, who has employment with the Congleton works on Red Bird, is at home with his parents at present.—Conly Moore of Bluke was taking in the holy roller meeting at Ethel Sunday.—If you are not acquainted with The Citizen, see the representative at Island City; he will introduce you.

Seoville

failure from inactivity. Remember the curse of Meroz—Judges 5-23. The curse of Meroz is uselessness or shirking because he went not up "to the help of the Lord against the mighty," when "the stars from their courses fought against Sisera." No wonder that Deborah and Barak were indignant on that day. The greatest menace to church or state today is the indifference and uselessness practiced by that element who belong to that strange condition of life called society, or fashion—who contribute no active, energetic labor to make the world better. They are neither intellectual or spiritual; neither are they characterized by superior intelligence or good breeding. Nothing is expected of them, and they do nothing. Selfishness is their middle name, and the word "duty" they never defined. Of such a type were the ninety thousand spectators who flocked to the great arena in Jersey City, July 2nd, to witness the degrading spectacle of the Dempsey-Carpentier prize-fight—a rank camouflage practiced on a too credulous public. "Is it wrong?" "Is it wicked?" so many ask with quizzical lifting of the eyebrows. That is not the question. The question is, that it is keeping you from higher things. Does it not separate your soul from God? There is no more inspiring sight than for men to put aside lower things of life that the higher come in. Cease being an ayasite, a profligate, and a complete release from moral cowardice will be felt thru the land.

BALMY PEACE

"IN THE sylvan solitudes," said the wild man of the woods, "a man doesn't see any magazines and doesn't receive any bulletins from the health authorities, so he enjoys a peace that is never known in the busy hamlets."

"There a man simply has to subscribe for a lot of magazines, as a matter of self-defense. Canvassers are after him all the time. Some of the canvassers are lone widows with many children to support, and others are energetic young men who are trying to work their way through the veterinary college."

They are deserving people, and you feel it a duty to help them along, so the first thing you know your mail box is jammed full of literature. Having paid for it, you feel that you ought to read it, and your life is ruined thereby.

"When I was young, the magazines tried to entertain people. They had good stories and a poet's corner and a department devoted to timely jokes, and another to household hints and domestic recipes. There was some sense in reading a magazine then, for it soothed and sustained you. But nowadays the magazine editors consider it their duty to borrow your soul and make your hair stand on end like quills upon the porkful pretophane, or words to that effect. They are always viewing with alarm, and trying to convince you that you take your life in your hand every five minutes."

"They have a lot of health specialists writing for them, and these health sharps point out that pretty near everything you eat and drink is a deadly poison. They didn't scare me to any great extent, for I am a most intrepid man, but they soon had my wife so rattled she didn't know whether she was going or coming."

"I always was passionately fond of a good cup of coffee, and my wife could make the best coffee you ever heard of. She went to work at it like a learned apothecary compounding a prescription. There was no guess work about it. She took an honest pride in it, and her coffee was a revelation to every consumer. I used to lie awake at night wishing it was breakfast time, so I could have my morning cup of coffee."

"But one morning when I went to the table the coffee was missing. In its place there was a sickly beverage I had never seen before. I asked an explanation, and my wife said that no more coffee would be made in our house. 'The wonder is,' said she, 'that we still live and move and have our being, for coffee is a rank poison. If you read Dr. Zinkfoogle's article in the Junkopolitan Magazine, you will see that coffee contains a large percentage of tannin, which is so deadly that if you place a drop on the tongue of an alligator, it will roll over, dead.'"

"I told her that I had no alligators on the premises, and consequently could not try the experiment, but I assured her that I didn't care anything about the poison. I wanted my coffee at regular hours. She said I'd have to keep on wanting. She thought too much of me to send me to an untimely grave. And, anyhow, she explained Dr. Zinkfoogle had told how to make a substitute for coffee that was perfectly wholesome. She had followed his

BOYS OF SUMMER SCHOOL ENTERTAIN GIRLS

The young men of the summer school gave a delightful entertainment to the young ladies of the summer school last Saturday evening, July 9.

The program was short but full of humor and kept the audience in a fit of laughter throughout. Refreshments were served after the program was finished.

Programs of this type, while not strictly educational, make summer school enjoyable and are highly worth while.

NOT MANY FEEBLE-MINDED

Authority Shows That Only Two Per Cent of the Population Can Be So Classed.

The idea that we are menaced as a nation by illiterates and feeble-minded is all wrong. We have illiterates and feeble-minded in our midst, but they are a relatively negligible force numerically. The reverse idea, or idea in the reverse, that we are short on genius, also is wrong, according to Dr. George G. Chambers, director of admissions at the University of Pennsylvania, and the educators who co-operate with him. Doctor Chambers says genius as a national crop is statistically as strong as the more discussed feeble-minded and that each represents a mere 2 per cent of the population.

But genius, says Dr. Chambers, is not the mere possession of a talent swollen to phenomenal degree, perhaps so hypertrophied that it is useless. He denies genius to the man, however great his talents, who cannot and does not exercise them. Genius in his definition is high intelligence followed by actual use of that intelligence in life. And intelligence is the ability to adapt one's self to new circumstances, to one's surroundings—in a word, to be able to know something and make use of one's knowledge. Under this definition it is surprising that the adaptable Yankee should not hold a higher record for genius than 2 per cent—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Beauty is said to be only skin deep, but many a woman's beauty depends upon the size of her bank balance.

Instructions, and the result was before me. Perhaps it didn't taste as good as coffee, but it was wholesome. It would fill my veins with red corpuscles and restore hair to my bald head. It was made of narrowleaf peas which had been carefully roasted in a hot oven.

"In order to get a cup of coffee after that I had to make a sneak to the chef's house, and the kind dish up there made me old before my time. My wife cut out all my favorite dishes because Dr. Zinkfoogle or some other magazine writer denounced them, and finally I was living on roasted peas coffee and boiled spinach, and I concluded that if I had to feed like the cows I'd live like them, so I came to the farmer for inspiration."

M. E. Vaughn, Berea College, Berea, Ky., will be pleased to receive any communication of interest from members of the Association.)

Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Clair, of Louisville, both graduates of Berea College, have announced the arrival, on July 4th, of a fine boy, whose name is Harvey Ray.

Professor Jerome Eastham and wife from Daytona, Fla., are visiting friends in Berea. Mr. Eastham is a member of the graduating class of 1914.

Professor Dwight L. Scoles, of the class of 1914, is visiting in Berea on his way from Illinois Wesleyan University to Roberts College, Constantinople, where he is to take the chair as Professor of Physics.

New York, May 23, 1921

Dear Fellow Alumni and Alumnae: In response to our secretary's request I will set down herewith certain facts about myself which may be of interest especially to my fellow ancients, whose years at Berea, like mine, were in the previous century, that nineteenth century which now seems so far away.

It seems to be my destiny to do what I can towards spreading the ideals of Berea by the selling and occasionally the writing of books. For a number of years after finishing my college course I was directly engaged in church work, both as a preacher and as a specialist in religious education. In 1911, I went into the Religious Literature Department of Charles Scribner Sons, as editor of their series of graded Sunday-school lessons. During my eight years with them, they published a book of mine, entitled, The Story of Our Bible, which seems to have made a place for itself with religious educators as an interpretation of modern Biblical scholarship, adapted to meet the needs and difficulties of young people.

In 1919, I was called to a position with the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. as manager of a new enterprise, the Religious Book Shop, which I am glad to say has done much to demonstrate the possibility of interesting the general book buyer, or "man on the street," in religious books.

I have just taken a new position with McDewitt-Wilson's, the famous down-town book store of New York, as manager of their mail order department. It is the ambition of all of us in this store to show what can be done with a general book store as a force for education and democracy.

The additional data requested by our secretary are as follows:

Married, in 1907, to Eunice H. Merrill, daughter of Rev. George R. Merrill, Home Missionary Superintendent of Minnesota.

Children — Merrill Bruce, born 1908; Mary Elizabeth, born 1911; Willard Franklin, born 1912; Barbara Ann, born 1914; Robert Stillwell, born 1915; Allan Webster, born 1916.

Sincerely yours,
